I've just found out that public comments at your meetings have been scheduled to occur late at night. This doesn't work for me or many people I know in town who either have to work in the morning or simply go to bed early.

Why have you done this? It feels like a form of censorship and that the public is not important. Also there might be important subjects that are brought up by people that need to be discussed immediately at the meeting.

Please reconsider this decision and return to your old way of scheduling.

Thank you,

Vidya Frazier
